What do I need to set up a new employee?

Yes, onboarding a new employee requires some paper pushing. There are required federal and state forms as well as payroll forms that you may want to take advantage of to make your and your employees' lives more convenient.

A few notes before we get started:

- Paper Trails offers fully compliant electronic new employee onboarding and employee document storage. Ask your processor for more information about this service.
- You must maintain all original employee paperwork in your files in the event of an audit, etc. Please do not provide Paper Trails with originals of federal or state required forms. We shred all new employee information once it has been loaded into our system. Employee files are required to be stored and maintained for up to 3 years from the date of termination.

Paperwork required by law:

- Federal W4 Form
- State W4 Form in the state in which they work
- Federal I-9 form with supporting documentation

All new hire forms are available on the "Resources" page at papertrails.com.

Other Payroll Forms/Information:

- Our New Employee Setup Form with basic information to for ease of setup within payroll
- Direct Deposit form & voided check
- Voluntary deduction agreement – if you are withholding premiums for health insurance or other deductions (uniforms, accounts receivable, loans, etc), you should have a written agreement from the employee granting their permission to deduct these from their net pay. Please note that any voluntary deductions must not drop the employee's gross pay below minimum wage levels.
- Maine Earned Paid Leave documentation?
- Workers Comp Class Codes

Secure Delivery:

- Because much of the information in new hire paperwork has social security numbers, account numbers, etc, please ask your payroll processor to send you a secure email link via email if that is how you wish to submit new employee information.

Feel free to contact your payroll processor if you have any questions regarding setup of your new employee.

Help Reduce Direct Deposit Fraud!

Paper Trails DOES NOT make changes on behalf of employees. Direct deposit scams and fraud are on the rise! We all must do our part to ensure that employee direct deposits are not sent to scammers. Fraudsters are using publicly available information like social media to target employers, HR staff and employees in an attempt to steal their direct deposits.

The most secure way for an employee to change their direct deposit account is to do so themselves through our secure payroll system. Changing direct deposit accounts is very easy for employees to do through www.myhrstuff.com or as an admin through isolved.

Steps you can take to Decrease Direct Deposit Fraud:

- Require employees to log into myhrstuff.com to update their direct deposit information themselves. This is a secure website with multi-factor authentication to ensure that employees really are who they say they are and eliminates the middleman when employees are updating their account information. Step-by-step instructions on how to change direct deposit information is available at papertrails.com/help.
- Do not accept direct deposit changes from employees via email! It is easy for spoofer to create a fake Gmail account or hack an employee's email account and pretend to be the employee. Always verify with the employee in person or by phone that they actually want to change their direct deposit information and that the information being submitted to payroll is accurate.
- Require a voided check or letter from the employees' bank to verify that routing and account information is correct. Direct deposit funds sent to the incorrect account cannot always be recovered if they are sent to the incorrect account.
- Ensure that your employees are using strong passwords for online applications, including their personal and work email accounts. Always use multi-factor authentication for personal and business email accounts. Fraudsters have also been known to hack email accounts and request changes from the employee's legitimate email account.
- If employees are using a pay card or if the banking looks suspicious, always triple check that it is the employee submitting the change and that the account information is correct. Pay cards are notorious for fraud and funds can almost never be recovered if sent to the incorrect account.

Steps the Paper Trails team takes to Decrease Direct Deposit Fraud:

- Paper Trails no longer changes direct deposit changes on behalf of employees. We require employees or company administrators to log in to make these changes. We do not want to add another middleman to the process which increases the chance of fraudulent activity. Step-by-step instructions on how to change direct deposit information is available at papertrails.com/help.
- If a client insists on submitting a direct deposit change on paper, we will only accept direct deposit change requests from our primary point of contact at your company, or specified designee. The form must be signed by the company contact indicating that the client has reviewed and approve the change request with the employee prior to submission. Unsigned direct deposit forms are not accepted or processed. Once the form has been received, our team will place a phone call to the client to ensure that the change has been authorized. Paper Trails bills $10 per change to the client for paper direct deposit form changes.
- isolved and myhrstuff.com require strong passwords that are hard to crack and use multi-factor authentication to verify user credentials.
- When a direct deposit change is made in myhrstuff.com, the employee and employer will both receive an email alert that a direct deposit account has changed. This email will alert the employee to a change and potentially raise a red flag of fraud.
- Our team undergoes thorough information security & fraud prevention training, and is always on high alert for fraudulent activity. If we see something suspicious, we will alert you immediately.

If you or your employees have questions about how to better prevent direct deposit fraud, please contact any member of our team!
